TROOP EXEMPTION CLAUSE IS SEEN AS AVERTING BLOW TO BRITISH-GREEK DEFENSE PLANS

By the Associated Press

Yugoslavia signs Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance but gains pledge no Axis troops will march through her territory; troop-exemption clause seen as averting blow to British-Greek defense plans against expected Nazi invasion of Greece.

Balkan reports say Greek, German troops clash in frontier skirmishes; Russia strengthens forces facing her western frontiers, speeds war supplies to Turkey, halts oil shipments to Germany; Moscow pledges "benevolent neutrality" if Turkey forced to fight.

Belgrade hears Germany has sent 240,000 troops to keep internal order in Italy, prevent separate Italian-Greek peace; Marshal Graziani resigns as commander of Italy's north African armies and Fascist chief of staff; Italians admit British capture of Neghelli, Ethiopia; Germans claim capture of British stronghold in Libyan desert, Agheila.

London Admiralty admits shipping losses totalling 410,000 tons in 5 weeks, but says Axis lost 300,000 tons in same period.

Roosevelt freezes Yugoslav funds in U. S., 13th nation so prescribed.

London hears Germany has 800,000 troops massed in Balkans for blitzkrieg attack and Soviet border defense.

HITLER PLANS TO RECEIVE ENVOYS IN PALACE LATER

Vienna, March 25—(AP)—Yugoslavia joined the Axis today but on terms more favorable than those given any other Balkan nation.

Berlin officialdom promptly called the act an "answer to Churchill and Roosevelt."

Adolf Hitler was in Vienna, presumably at Belvedere Palace, when the pact was signed, but it was not known whether he witnessed the actual signing.

In Berlin, an authorized spokesman declared that British Prime Minister Churchill had threatened Rumania, Bulgaria, and Yugoslavia before they joined the Axis and asserted that "President Roosevelt had indirectly made a similar expression toward the Balkans and directly through the Yugoslav minister in Washington."

The reference to Mr. Roosevelt was based on a recent report in a Hungarian newspaper that the president had offered to support Yugoslavia if she resisted the Axis overtures. Official sources in Berlin declared they had no reason to doubt that Mr. Roosevelt had made such an offer.

(The report has never been confirmed in Washington.)

German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, on behalf of the other adherents of the three-power pact, solemnly assured Prince Paul, Yugoslavia's chief regent, that the territorial integrity of his country would be respected and that no troops would march through it.

This unequivocal pledge, together with authoritative German comment that "we don't want Balkan divisions," gives credence to the following version which the Associated Press has received from a well-informed source:

First, Germany undertook to guarantee Yugoslavia's integrity and obligated Italy and Japan likewise to respect it:

Second, she promised that neither the frontiers nor territory of Yugoslavia would be violated:

Third, she specifically exempted Yugoslavia from giving any military aid to the three-power nations;

Alignment Opens Way For New Front in Balkans

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, March 25—(AP)—Yugoslavia's alignment with the Axis—opening the way for a German-British battlefront in the Balkans—was expected by military observers today to force Britain and Greece to revise their entire joint defense plan.

Again it was said, German diplomacy apparently had won an advantage for German arms before the first shot could be fired.

Almost certainly, these experts declared, the pen stroke putting Yugoslovia in the Axis camp would rule out the British-Greek strategy of holding the Nazis from Bulgaria along the short Struma river line.

Instead, it was said, the defense probably would have to be drawn deeper into Greek Macedonia—at best beyond the broad Vardar river valley, and possibly widening the battlefront to 200 miles from Albania to the border of Turkish Thrace.

The chances that British and Greek forces could hold the 30-mile long Struma front against attack from Bulgaria alone had been regarded in some quarters as good.

The valley of the Struma is narrow, gouging through mountains, and would leave Nazi forces without rail or highway lines of supply back to their Bulgarian bases.

The broader Vardra vallye, winding down from Yugoslavia farther.

FUNDS TIED UP BY PRESIDENT'S FREEZING ORDER

Washington, March 25—(AP)—President Roosevelt today froze all funds of Yugoslavia in the United States.

This was announced at the treasury shortly after Yugoslavia signed the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis pact.

No explanation of the freezing was given, but it has been the policy of the administration to tie up the funds of any country com-

NATIONS CLEAR DECKS FOR WAR ON LARGE SCALE

By The Associated Press

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, March 25—Headlines in red ink and blaring radios told Yugoslavs today that their country had signed the three-power pact in Vienna, as Germany, Britain, Greece and Turkey cleared the decks for possible large scale warfare on a new Balkan front.

Extra editions featured the notes delivered to Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic by the German and Italian foreign ministers promising to "respect the independence and territorial integrity of Yugoslavia forever" and that "the Axis powers will not ask Yugoslavia to permit passage of troops through Yugoslav territory."

Palace attendants said Regent Prince Paul and the Croat peasant leader, Dr. Vladimir Macek, listened together to a broadcast of the ceremony at a radio in a study of the White Palace.

But even as the pact was signed pamphlets were being distributed in the streets of Belgrade declaring that Adolf Hitler would "burn his tongue by nibbling on Yugoslavia."

At the same time the Belgrade radio announced it would begin immediately to interpret all foreign war news for the benefit of the Yugoslav people.

Reports began reaching Belgrade, meanwhile, of demonstrations in the provinces. At Cetinje, in Montenegro, reportedly great crowds gathered, shouting "down with the government!" denouncing the tri-partite treaty with speeches. . . .

(The line was cut at this point in filing the dispatch from Belgrade to the Associated Press office in Bern, Switzerland, for relay to New York. The following

Mediation Board Appeals to Labor and Management

By the Associated Press

The new National Defense Mediation Board organized in Washington today, urging labor and management to prevent any further interruption of the defense program. It met as sporadic violence marked efforts of workers to enter the Bethlehem Steel Company's plant at Bethlehem, Pa., and the International Harvester McCormick works at Chicago. CIO unions called strikes at both places.

Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, chairman in a statement at the mediation group's first meeting, said this was a time of "world crisis" and that if the United States "is be an arsenal for democracy there must be uninterrupted flow of production from mine, mill and factory."

All 11 members were present. Chairman Dykstra urged the public to support the board in a policy "that the public welfare today requires each of us to subordinate a purely private or personal interest to the good of the country." He said the group would "endeavor to be impartial, completely honest, and thoroughly nonpolitical."

The board has no powers to com-

LEWIS TAKES AN ACTIVE PART IN NEGOTIATIONS

New York, March 25—(AP)—John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO), today took an active place on the joint sub-committee representing bituminous coal miners and operators negotiating a contract to replace the one expiring March 31.

Asked, as he entered the conference room, if there was a possibility of a work stoppage in the event a new agreement had not been reached by that date, Lewis replied: "It would be a lockout."

He said that under existing contract the miners could not go into the mines unless a new agreement were in effect, and added, "I don't want my men to trespass."

Although Lewis attended the general conference of the 8-state Appalachian area preceding the formation of the sub-committee, today marked the first time he had actually entered the negotiations.

He took the place of Thomas Kennedy, UMWA secretary and secretary of the general conference, who is an ex-officio member af the sub-committee Kennedy was called to Washington in connection with work of the National Defense Mediation Board, to which he was named last week.

Asked how much progress had been made in the negotiations, Lewis answered that "frankly, I don't know what the general picture is," and indicated that was among the things he hoped to learn at today's session.

In the negotiations two years ago, Lewis was in constant attendance. Before an agreement was reached at that time, there was a six-week work stoppage.

LONG HIKE WINS HIGH PRAISE FOR BOYS OF 112TH

After Most Ambitious Maneuver Since Camp Opened, More Than 12,000 Men From This Area Are Commended by Commander

Indiantown Gap, March 25—(AP)—Young National Guardsmen who were deprived of their last semester of high school work when the Pennsylvania Guard was inducted into the army, will still get their sheepskins if the state department of public instruction has anything to say about it.

After a conference with Major General Edward Martin, post commandant, yesterday, Dr. Francis B. Haas, state superintendent of public instruction, announced he would authorize school districts to issue certificates of graduation to such guardsmen providing their scholastic records were satisfactory.

Camp officials estimated some 500 of the 13,500 guardsmen in training here would fall into this classification.

In the most ambitious maneuver since the camp opened, more than 1,200 men of the 112th Infantry

19 DIE IN BLAST ABOARD TANKER

New York, March 25—(AP)—Nineteen seamen were reported missing today after an explosion and fire struck the 9,316-ton oil tanker Cities Service Denver 80 miles south of Cape Lookout, N. C.

The tanker Pan-New York reported it had rescued 17 officers and men and said a third tanker, the W. W. Bruce, had picked up five other survivors.

The coast guard here picked up a later radio report which indicated a coast guard boat had rescued five more members of the stricken vessel's crew but details were lacking.

The Cities Service Denver, the coast guard said, was a "flaming mass."

The missing men were believed to have been in the forward part of the tanker when the explosion occurred at 11 p. m., E. S. T., last night, the Pan-New York said.

Five coast guard craft were dispatched to the scene, about 100 miles offshore. The W. W. Bruce was standing by the stricken 468-foot vessel.

The Cities Service Denver's home port was New York, but she regularly plied the Philadelphia-Corpus Christi (Tex.) run and was due in Philadelphia Thursday or Friday.

TEAR GAS DISPERSES STRIKERS

While Moves For Possible Settlement of Walkout Called by CIO Steel Workers Committee Are Launched, Governor James Sends Commissioner Adams to Bethlehem to "Survey Conditions" After Appeal From Sheriff

FOUR POINT PROGRAM OFFERED TO COMPANY

Bethlehem, March 25—(AP)—Moves for possible settlement were made today as clashes and the first use of tear gas marked a strike called by the CIO Steel Workers Organizing Committee at the Giant parent plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company which has more than one billion dollars of defense contracts.

Developments included:

1. An afternoon conference was arranged between a federal conciliator, SWOC officials, and leaders of the Employes Representation Plan.

2. Howard Curtiss, district SWOC head, announced a four-point program through which he said he hoped for "early termination" of the strike.

The walkout was called by the SWOC at 5:30 p. m. Monday because, Curtiss charged, the employes representation plan began what he said was "an illegal" election. The SWOC claims the ERP is a company-dominated union.

Governor Arthur H. James sent Commissioner Lynn G. Adams, head of the Pennsylvania state police, here to "survey conditions."

At the same time James announced the State Liquor Control Board ordered closing all taprooms in the plant area.

The governor said Sheriff W. Calvin Nickle of Northampton county asked the help of state police in a telegram:

"I will be unable to control situation with men at my disposal."

R. A. Lewis, general manager of the Bethlehem plant, declared:

SENATE STUDIES REPORT OF MILK INVESTIGATION

Harrisburg, March 25—(AP)—An "acute milk problem" exists for Pennsylvania farmers, a special commission told the state legislature today in a lengthy report embodying 10 recommendations to improve the "workability" of the state milk control law.

"Public health is well guarded at the present time," the commission said, "but certain additional measures are necessary to protect producers in their transactions with milk dealers.

While the general assembly studied the report, a senate committee shaped up plans for a public hearing tomorrow on a bill that would abolish 105 municipal ordnances covering milk inspection and replace them with a state-wide standard.

Senator George B. Scarlett (R-Chester), chairman of the senate agriculture committee, said he had received "numerous" requests from persons who wanted to speak at the hearing.

The bill, introduced in the house by Reps. Clayton E. Moul (D-York) and Carleton T. Woodring (D-Northampton) will be discussed at 1 p. m., in the senate chambers.

The commission, established by the assembly in 1939 to investigate the milk situation, pointed out that Pennsylvania was one of the chief dairy states of the nation and that milk was "the chief source of the farmer's cash income" in the state.

"The farmer who meets today's high sanitary requirements for fluid milk," the report said, "finds little consolation in knowing that for the amount of milk that is not consumed in fluid form he will receive a price satisfactory for less carefully prepared milk."

Co. I Appeals For Game Room Furniture

An appeal has been made from Captain Ray P. Miskimon asking for donations of furnishings for the recreation hall at Indiantown Gap, which will soon be turned over to the local unit. The officer asks especially for chairs, card tables, a pool table and piano.

The Citizen's Committee has assumed the task of trying to secure these articles and asks that any person who can make donations get in touch with the Times-Mirror editorial rooms or phoning 1400.

Arrangements have been made to collect the articles and have them delivered to the state armory. Plans to have them transported to Indiantown Gap will be made by Captain Miskimon later.

BILL PROPOSES CHANGES IN PA. WELFARE LAWS

Measure to Set Up Advisory Council and Strengthen Changes in Unemployment Compensation Act Wins Committee Approcal

DRY HEARING STARTS

By the Associated Press

Harrisburg, March 25—A Republican-backed bill to set up a state advisory council and strengthen changes made in 1939 to Pennsylvania's unemployment compensation law won the approval of a Senate committee today.

While the measure was moved into position for quick action, a Democratic bill raising the rates of jobless payments to the level established in 1937 was being considered by a House committee. The latter was backed also by the CIO and AFL in Pennsylvania.

The Senate bill, said James A. Geltz, of Allegheny county, Republican floor leader in the Senate, contained "twenty-two liberalizing amendments" to the present law.

Senator Henry I. Wilson (R-Jefferson), chairman of the workmen's compensation committee, which considered the bill, said most of the amendments were "minor," largely directed toward making the law conform to federal statutes.

The bill was introduced by Sen-

Absent Trainee Only Too Late for the Bus

Wilkes-Barre, March 25—(AP)—Young John F. Scully's delay in getting refreshment on his way to induction in the army caused state police to order a wide search for him in the mistaken belief that he was trying to avoid military service.

Yesterday, Scully, 28-year-old resident of Jeannette, reported to the draft board in Sunbury and with other young men was started for the induction center in Wilkes-Barre. The bus stopped in Bloomsburg and Scully got off for a drink. He hadn't returned when the bus left and the selective service official asked state police to send out a request for his arrest.

But Scully got to Wilkes-Barre as soon as he could and reported for examination.

FUND BILL READY FOR PRESIDENT

Congressional Action on Measure Providing Appropriation of $7,000,000,000 Completed When Signatures Are Attached by Wallace and Rayburn; Commercial Plane to Carry it to Miami on First Leg of Journey

GIVEN OVERWHELMING APPROVAL IN SENATE

Washington, March 25—(AP)—Vice President Wallace and Speaker Rayburn signed the $7,000,000,000 British aid bill today, completing congressional action on the measure.

Wallace signed the measure at 12:48 p. m., 41 minutes after Rayburn had affixed his signature.

The bill was immediately sent back to the House where the enrolling clerk was to deliver it to the White House.

At the White House officials said the bill will be flown to Miami, Fla., aboard a commercial plane leaving Washington at 3:45 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time), and arriving at Miami in late evening. From there it will be flown by special plane to the president, now on a vacation cruise, for his signature.

The bill will be carried by a postal inspector in a pouch along with other White House mail.

Only a parliamentary technicality kept the bill from being on its way south yesterday soon after the Senate gave it the overwhelming approval of a 67-9 vote. The House, however, had adjourned before the Senate acted and the rules require that it be in session when the speaker signs legislation.

TWO ARE SLAIN IN OHIO GANG WAR

Warren, O., March 25—(AP)—Working with meager clues and without a murder motive, police today moved swiftly to check recent connections of James Munsene, 52, and Felix Monfrino, 29, who were slain in gangland fashion before 20 horror-stricken customers of Munsene's Steak House.

Munsene was a former dog track operator and Monfrino his business associate.

The two fell in a volley of bullets from the guns of two well-dressed men who strolled into the flats district cafe last night, bought a drink of whiskey and suddenly began shooting.

One of the assailants shouldered aside Earl Huffman of Youngstown, who had been talking with Munsene, and his gun blazed at the proprietor. Two bullets creased Huffman's clothes.

The gunmen turned their fire on Monfrino as he rushed from the adjoining dining room.

As one gunman shouted "let's go," the other replied calmly:

"Wait. I want to make sure he's done." With that he pumped two more shots into Munsene's body.

The gunmen fled in a waiting coupe.

Defense Costs Push Year's Appropriations Toward a Record Total of $25,000,000,000

Washington, March 25—(AP)—The tremendous expenses of an all-out defense program pushed congressional appropriations today rapidly toward an all-time record total of more than $25,000,000,000 for one year's governmental activities.

The prospective total would be almost double the $13,542,000,000 spent last year, and well above the $18,514,880,000 expended in the peak of the world war year.

The house already has approved outlays of $17,810,994,862, including the $7,000,000,000 British aid appropriation, and it has still to act on some $7,351,313,159 in other budget estimates from President Roosevelt.

But that may not be the end. Fiscal experts anticipate that supplemental requests for still more millions of dollars will be sent to the capitol as new defense needs develop.

Thus far the largest single outlay approved has been the $7,000,000,000 for British aid. A prospective second to that was the president's recommendation that $5,967,475,809 be approved for regular war department activities—a measure now pending. The third big money measure was the $3,415,521,000 navy appropriation on which congressional action has virtually been completed.

J. Roy Richards, 52, Garland service station operator, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace T. M. Greenlund this morning and charged with aggravated assault and battery in connection with the shooting of his wife, Ida May Richards, 53, early Sunday morning as she sat in a parked car in the driveway of their combined beer garden and gasoline station at Garland.

Mrs. Richards was removed from the Warren General Hospital yesterday afternoon and taken to Erie for special treatment. She is suffering from a shattered knee, received when a .30 calibre bullet struck her after passing through the door of the car.

HEART'S HAVEN

Ruth Rosemary Corby

YESTERDAY: Mrs. Marbury's expedition by plane to a remote island off the North Carolina coast started out half business, half just a lark. Mrs. Marbury wanted to buy an old house, and there was an old house on the island. But her plane has not returned, the caretakers are antagonistic, and Lawyer Howe and his assistant Jim Droissard are planning something. Not to mention the fact that two romances are being dislocated by the presence of Brett Rodman.

Chapter 12

Shots Out Of Nowhere

BRETT RODMAN, suddenly serious, said quickly:

"If there is any danger, no one should go wandering around alone. I still can't believe that any of this is deliberate . . . except that we would have a house-party," he added ironically. "But intentional or not, no one should take a chance on wandering away. If Ham wants to walk about, I'll go with him."

Eve was irritated as she usually was, at one of Brett's pronouncements. He seemed so smug and cocksure. She didn't suspect that he had anything to do with their predicament—it would be such a silly way to sell a house!

Nevertheless, Brett Rodman's calm assumption that they were a lot of helpless sheep and were making the worst of a bad situation, annoyed Eve more and more. Of course, she admitted to herself, Brett had no way of knowing that she was not one of this gilded company which took safety and ease for granted.

She had wondered lately what he would say if she should suddenly admit the truth. Would he admit, then, that he was bewildered as they were? Or would he still feel that they were making a great to-do over nothing? She saw a chance to get even and said swiftly:

"I think you're making too much of this temporary embarrassment, Mr. Rodman. Anyway, if Ham wants to walk his dog, there is nothing on earth to prevent it, is there? Lordy Mac has his rights."

"Hear—hear!" said Neil Bowron appreciatively.

But Brett looked at her so disappointingly that Eve was a little afraid she had gone too far. However, he said only:

"Miss Prentice is reading something into my statement that was not there. Of course I don't believe there's anything to get excited about. Anyone who stays near the house should be safe enough," he added patronizingly. "But I thought Mr. Milliard intended looking around the island. And I don't believe he should go alone, in that case. We should all stick together."

Eve felt as if she had been reprimanded like a child, and she thought that perhaps the others agreed. At any rate, Mr. Howe and Julie and even Gina agreed with Brett Rodman.

Eve looked at her plate disconsolately and felt sorry for herself. Gina was making such a play for Rodman that even Ham had felt slightly uncomfortable. But that—that iceberg—Eve thought fiercely, wanted only to get them away. He was willing even to humiliate her and Ham to gain his point.

Later, when Ham was standing in the hall putting on Lordy Mac's harness, Eve slipped up to him and whispered:

"Listen — that Rodman doesn't know it all. If you want to do a little exploring, I'm with you."

"Right!" Ham whispered back. "But go into the living room and say you're sleepy, or something. Then, instead of going upstairs, slip out through the doorway into the lower hall and meet me at the side of the house. Then we'll go down to the beach together."

Love In Doubt

IT WAS fun to wink at him and agree, but later, slipping out through the door from the hall that led into the transverse hallway, Eve felt anything but adventurous. The night had a damp chill that was definitely unfavorable to adventure.

But she resolutely threw a coat over her shoulders and went on to the side door. She started when Ham spoke to her, almost at her elbow.

"Say — this is pretty swell of you, but I'm feeling that I wasn't so smart. I don't mind getting mixed up in anything myself, but I don't want you. . . ."

"Nonsense!" said Eve, with a light-heartedness she did not feel. "Rodman is just being too cautious. After this is over, we'll laugh at our jitters."

"Well . . . maybe—" Ham agreed cautiously.

He led the way down to the beach, keeping Lordy Mac carefully on his leash. That gentleman, finding that he was expected to be quiet, carefully restrained himself, and even refused to do more than growl in his throat as the white cat darted around the house.

Once on the beach, however, Ham slipped the leash and Lordy Mac ran wildly up and down, pretending that the water was attacking him and then pursuing it as the waves retreated. Ham and Eve stood there laughing at him. Eve at ease for the first time in many days. Then suddenly Ham destroyed the peace of the misty night.

"Say, Eve," he began without preamble, "do you think Gina will ever marry me?"

"Why, Ham!" Eve was almost at a loss for words. "Why—why do you ask me that question?" she parried.

"Because—she likes you. And she—she may have said something she wouldn't say to me," Ham went on unhappily. "I know I'm not much to look at," he added humbly, "compared to Neil or to Brett Rodman. And I don't know much about anything—even houses. But I've loved Gina for so long—"

"I understand, Ham," Eve could not trust herself to say more for the moment. She herself had noticed the increasing amount of time Gina and Brett managed to be together. But if Ham were noticing Gina's behavior, too, perhaps it was more serious than she had thought. She felt the cold of the night wind suddenly and pulled her coat more tightly around her shoulders.

"I—I'll talk to Gina, she promised the disconsolate young man at her side. "I know she likes you, Ham—you remember she protested against you coming out here tonight."

"That's right, she did!" In Ham's voice was all the wonder of an explorer finding a new world.

"While I led you on," Eve continued with a remorseful laugh. "But come on—we must get back now—and certainly the beach is quiet enough. . . ."

Run For Life

THERE was a soft swishing noise and a popping sound that mingled with the beat of the sea on the shore. Eve wouldn't have been quite sure she heard it, except that Ham's hand was against her elbow and he urged her quickly:

"Lie down—flat on the sand. Here—Lordy! Down!"

"But what—what was it?" Eve asked. The sand was cool against her fingers, and damp from so much rain.

"Somebody shooting at us, I think. Keep down." Again there was a soft, popping noise and this time Eve saw a little spurt of sand shoot up toward the sky. All at once she began to tremble violently.

"Steady—steady! It's just someone up at the house—trying to be smart." Nevertheless his arm was around her shoulder, and he didn't sound too reassuring. For how long they crouched there, Eve could not tell.

But there were no more noises and finally Ham asked her if she thought she could run for it. Eve agreed, with no feeling one way or the other.

Ham locked her arms in his and with the same gesture that brought them to their feet, he started to run. They did not stop until they reached the front porch and pounded up it, bursting in the front door. The others came out of the living room hurriedly; Julie ran over to Eve.

"Oh, my dear! You're as white as a ghost. What is it?"

Eve could only bury her head in Julie's comforting shoulder, but Ham, with Gina clinging to his arm, managed to say:

"Let's all get back in the living room." They turned and followed without objection, and then Ham said suddenly, "Has anyone left this room?"

For a minut no one answered. Then Neil cleared his throat and spoke.

"Yes, I did. I went upstairs to get my pipe and to have a look around for Eve. I was uneasy about her—I tapped on her door, but she didn't answer. And I came down again. I was about to speak to Mrs. Emerson about it when we heard you running."

"I went outside for a breath of air, and to see if it was raining," Jim Droissard put in. "But there was such a heavy mist I didn't stay long."

"No—you came right back," Mr. Howe agreed. "What's the trouble, Milliard? You haven't told us yet."

"We were shot at — " Ham paused and was gratified by the astounded faces of his listeners. "Eve and I decided to give Lordy Mac a run on the beach," he confessed. "We didn't think all this hush-hush business was necessary. Well," he admitted grimly, "we were wrong. Somebody shot at us—not once but twice, and the shots came uncomfortably close.

"We know now that there's no one on the island except ourselves and the Jacksons. If you were all here in this room or accounted for, it must be the Jacksons."

"Odd we didn't hear the shots," Mr. Howe said. "But the fire is cracking so, we might have confused the noises." He glanced at Jim Droissard and as quickly glanced away. "Well—anyway, it's over. Now the question is—who did fire the shots?"

"One of the Jacksons," said Julie positively. "I've never liked that woman. And she said she didn't want us around. If we could have got away the first day, it might have been all right. But as it is, she may have decided to do us in, one by one. . . ."

"But don't you think we should have the Jacksons in here and question them?" asked Mrs. Marbury. "Really—if they don't want us . . ."

"You'd ask them if they shot at Milliard and Miss Prentice?" the lawyer interposed smoothly. "Oh, no, my dear Mrs. Marbury. If they really have got to the point where they will stop at nothing to get rid of us, we must remember one thing."

"And what is that?" said Neil sharply.

"There's very little we can do about it—at the moment," the lawyer said with finality.

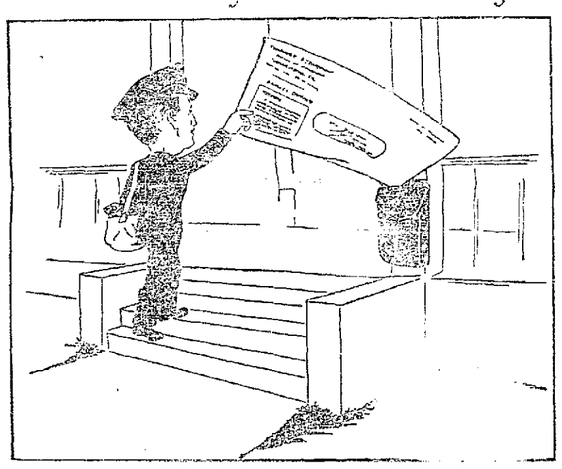
Social Security and the New Job



Many workers are now changing jobs or taking their first jobs as a result of the national defense program. Most of these jobs are covered by old-age and survivors insurance under the Social Security Act.

Mr. Bernard A. Farnbaugh, manager of the Erie, Pennsylvania, Social Security Board office at 1001 State Street has prepared a series of eight brief articles for the Times-Mirror explaining the steps each worker should now take in connection with his social security account to avoid delays or difficulties when he or his family are ready to collect insurance benefits.

Any worker who does not have a social security account number card can obtain one at the Social Security Board office.

No. 8

Since January 1, 1940, monthly checks from the Federal Government have been going to retired workers past age 65 who were insured under the Social Security Act. When the retired worker has a wife also past 65 years of age, the monthly income is increased by a half. When an insured worker has died since January 1, 1940, and left young children, monthly payments are made to his family.

The amount of monthly retirement benefits received by an insured worker under the Social Security Act or the monthly income which his family gets in case of his death depends on his wages received in employment covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance system. That is the reason the worker should make certain the Government has a complete record of his wages.

This Federal insurance system is explained in a Social Security Board pamphlet entitled, "Old-Age and Survivors Insurance for Workers and Their Families." A copy of this pamphlet can be obtained free by writing or visiting the field office.

Defense Priorities Not Too Serious in Auto Manufacturing

Although defense is the automobile industry's prime concern, priorities and shortages of materials do not predict an interruption in the production of motor cars, according to Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation. Rather, they simply mean a new challenge to the ingenuity of the automotive engineer, Mr. Hoffman said last week, at a meeting of Studebaker distributors and dealers in Chicago.

Defense needs may alter, but not strangle, the nation's cars. Aluminum pistons may give way to cast iron, but they'll be excellent pistons. Radiator grilles may not be die cast, but they will be just as full of glitter. Body sections may be welded by a different process but they will be as strong, as sturdy, as sleek and streamlined. All this, Mr. Hoffman believes, and he says automotive engineers welcome the challenge as part of their contribution to the nation's defense.

"As long as we have steel, we'll have automobiles," said Mr. Hoffman. "Defense needs are going to make new demands, are going to make the engineers work harder. We'll have to make changes in designs, production machinery and the cars themselves. These things won't be simple to accomplish, but they are not too difficult. Engineers have been faced with similar 'crises' for years; it's just a part of the job, an everyday problem that can be licked."

The modern airliner carries around 50 instruments worth about $15,000. Ten years ago transport planes had less than 15 instruments valued at $1000 to $2000.

COLE HILL

Cole Hill, March 17—Roy Ellis, construction foreman of the state highway, accompanied by Seth Holmes of Garland, caretaker of the road, were here Thursday taking an inventory of the snow fences and tools. The snow was so deep that they had hard work to find the snow fences. The snow fences are supposed to be taken down by the first of April if they can be taken down then. If not there has to be a permit from the owners of the land to keep them there until they can be taken down.

Metzger-Wrights to Be Ruled For a Day By Women of Store

Women will rule! Yes, even if it is only for one day.

Breathes there a woman
With soul so dead
Who never to herself has said
If I were only Boss instead!

This thought was uppermost in the minds of the women of Metzger-Wright's last Saturday when they went, en masse, to W. H. Wright, the store's vice president, and said:

"Remember last year? On the 29th of February you let us run this store and look what we did for you. Didn't we give you one of the biggest day's business of last year? Didn't we get the wholehearted help of every woman in Warren? Look at the values we gave. We want to rule for a day, at least. We want a chance to show the men again what we can do."

What could the poor man do with so many women? Everything they said was right. Last year they did have one of the biggest days in the history of the store, planned and carried out by the women. And so he said: "Go ahead if you think you can do it."

"Think we can do it! Well, we'll just show him," said they.

They went into a huddle immediately and elected executives to fill all the men's shoes and went right to work planning for the day when they would not only manage the store but fill all the men's shoes from the delivery department to the vice president's.

More news tomorrow.

During January, 1941, 524,126 passenger cars and trucks were produced in the United States and Canada, setting a record for that month in the industry.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—People walking in Madison Avenue the other night began to run toward a reddish-yellow glow that quickly grew into an inferno of crackling flames. A taxicab, its driver nowhere apparent, had caught fire, and all through the city the melancholy wail of the sirens took up the cry as big hook-and-ladders, flashy red "chiefs" and similar apparatus cleared the right of way and bore down on the scene.

The incident took place just after nightfall, just around the corner from 45th street. Out of 45th and into Madison careened a piece of fire-fighting equipment half a block long. It was met, face on, by a similar vehicle from a rival station. In a twinkling four other huge trucks drew up, and the firefighters, unreeling their hose, were clearing the fireplugs on the curbs. On the trucks, whining and yelping with excitement, the Dalmatians (without which no self-respecting fire wagon in New York would venture abroad) were in their element. There must have been 100 of New York's crack firefighters on the scene, with enough equipment to save a borough.

OUT of this conglomeration suddenly popped a lone fireman with one little insignificant can of chemical fire extinguisher in his hands. He sprayed the burning taxicab and—just like that—the flame was out.

The firemen all looked at each other in disappointment. The chief climbed into his red comet and rode off. One by one, the mighty hook-and-ladders eased into the side streets and disappeared. It was a disappointing ending for such a spectacular beginning.

LATER I dropped by the Hotel New Yorker to pay my respects to Sam Houston Jones, Governor of Louisiana and a resident of Lake Charles, where I lived for so many years as a boy.

Sam Houston Jones is a spectacular name, and I thought of this while crossing the lobby because with me was Woodrow Wilson Herman, known as "Woody" to you, who is no politician but the leader of a fine orchestra that bears his name. I hate to mention this on top of Sam Houston and Woodrow Wilson, but a reporter must tell what he sees, and so I hereby make note that the elevator boy who took me up to the Governor's suite was George Washington Clark, aged 27, an upstate boy who has come to the city to earn his fortune.

THE Governor was in fine fettle and confessed that his first night in town had been devoted, largely, to sitting in on "Louisiana Purchase," that gay satire on Louisiana politics which has amused Americans from all sections of the country for more than half a year.

"We can appreciate some of the things they said about the state," Sam Houston Jones commented dryly. "They could have said more. But I thought it was lots of fun."

Governor Jones' mission in the metropolis is one of promoting Louisiana, he says, in interests in three types of industry—national defense, chemical, petroleum. One of his aims is to attract new industries in these categories. "The state is now third in oil reserves," he said. "Only the other day the Bull Louisiana oil field was discovered."

Sam Houston Jones required only two days in the city. Then he climbed aboard the Sunset for Washington, and home.

LIFE AT INDIANTOWN GAP

A vivid word-picture of the routine life Warren county boys are leading with Company I at Indiantown Gap is contained in an article written by Rice Yahner, special correspondent for the Associated Press and the Times-Mirror, who says:

Personally, I'd rather be in the army.

The soldier's life is a 24-hour job of work, play and sleep and by now the 13,500 men who are in their second month of federal service have slipped into it so completely that there is hardly a ruffle in the day-to-day routine.

To the uninitiated civilian this vast military reservation is an awesome sight—at first glance—because of its magnitude and portent, but after a day's travel over the 15,200 acres the visitor comes to the inaccurate conclusion that nothing is happening.

Much is happening, quietly and without spectacle. And the soldier is in the thick of it all. His interest is held—almost without exception voluntarily—in the small task that is his in making a finished fighting machine of men and machines.

The usual makes the army. It's the unusual that makes news. And the fighting men have settled down to such "usuality" that they have won the praise of the commander, Major General Edward Martin.

Day by day the infantry marches, attends schools, learns the technique of the rifle and the bayonet, how to care for personal equipment and how to keep healthy; the artillerymen take trucks and guns over fields and roads, getting ready to go any place; the cavalry cares for their horses and motor equipment; and the engineers, quartermasters and medicos perform their particular tasks with as little fanfare as if they were on the jobs in civil life they so recently left.

All this goes on—in the first 13-week program of training men in fundamentals—in out of the way regimental training areas, leaving the camp apparently quiet. Why the most congestion and confusion is caused when 4,500 workmen finishing the building of the camp lay down their tools and streak for homes in surrounding communities.

In a month or two the soldiers will begin moving out for field maneuvers and only then will there be much of the spectacular.

In the past month there has not been a fire, although the men have been living in a thousand wooden buildings.

More than 1,000 soldiers have been sick and not one has died.

More than 2,000 motor vehicles travel hundreds of miles a day and not a soldier has been critically injured.

So personally as a name man looking for work I'd rather be in the army.

Grab Your Hats, Boys . . . That Beautiful Dream of Defense Boom Ending WPA is Just a Dream

Washington, March 25.—Any hope you may have had that the defense program, by creating a lot of new jobs, would wipe out WPA, now seems rather remote. And with that admission, you begin to wonder just what there may be to the Beautiful Dreamer Wake Unto Me theory that we or anyone else can ever spend our way back to prosperity, even when we spend for such ephemeral stuff as battleships and bullets made to be destroyed.

It's simply not in the cards.

In the first place the President has transmitted to Congress the National Resources Planning Board recommendation for a six-year public works program to aid post-war stabilization, and the WPA workers waiting for congressional action, has already set up a new unit to start making plans to put in a reservoir to be drawn on when and as the defense effort collapses. These two moves indicate the administration has no illusions of filling up relief work vacancies.

Frank A. Welch, who has been chief of the project control division of WPA in Washington, has been made national director of the new long-range planning unit, and while there has not been time to prepare a detailed program, there are indications that it will concern itself mainly of paper, beginning with public works and with [illegible] are the things the city is looking for when national defense is over.

In the second place, defense spending is not spread evenly, like soft butter over the national breadline. The butter knife was wiped off on the crusts, with the result that the old industrial east and the new industrial west and the Buffalo to Milwaukee area of the Great Lakes region get the biggest gobs of governmental gravy. And the center of the loaf gets comparatively none.

Putting it statistically, 50 per cent of the defense contracts awarded thus far have been in areas representing only 20 per cent of WPA employment. Putting it tother way round, 80 per cent of the people on WPA live in areas which get only 20 per cent of the contracts. Four out of five don't have much chance of getting off WPA, therefore, unless some way can be found to spread out the defense benefits, or until the defense effort raises the general prosperity to such a level that the non-defense areas are carried along in a flood tide of recovery.

The idea of moving workers from the areas which need relief into the areas which have a defense boom is generally frowned on. Past experience has proved that big migrations of labor have been disastrous failures unless carefully prepared for, and furthermore, it isn't the unskilled relief worker who is wanted in the defense industries where the highly skilled labor shortage pinch is felt sufficiently to make employers say Ouch.

Another and most important factor is that there are today more workmen than there ever were before, more people who need jobs. In the last 10 years there has been a net increase of 6 million potential job holders, and this figure you can balance neatly against the 6 million people now unemployed.

In other words, there are now more people gainfully employed than there were at the peak of the boom in 1929. In still other words, the depression now, so far as unemployment is concerned, is just about as acute as it was in 1930 and 1931, and from only a third to a half better than it was in 1932 and later years when there were from 9 to 12 million unemployed. No one, of course, knows just how many there were.

WPA cannot and must not be written off as a total loss to the defense effort. It was only a few years ago, when Congress was in the big-hearted mood to spend

Word Arithmetic

By adding commonplace words together, either by their sounds or spelling, you can form the names of men or places in the news today. Try these.

1. Add the opposite of heel to a small stream and get a city in Libya captured by the British.
2. Add the flower of a thistle to a measure of weight, and a circular disk to verb meaning to make a mistake and get first and last names of a senator who opposed the lend-lease bill.
3. Add a blow to a sinister look and get the name of a European badman.
4. Add an insect to a male being and a leg joint to get an aggressive European nation.
5. Add victories to 2000 pounds, and a place of worship to a summit and get the name of a British leader.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—For the second day, I'm giving you a brief resume of the lecture delivered by Rep. Luther Patrick, of Birmingham, Ala., to new members of the House of Representatives. It's down-to-earth, behind-the-scenes stuff and offers an intimate aspect of Congressional life.

More of Patrick's "do's and don'ts":

"(7) Avoid the mistake of thinking it is two years before you have to run again. A congressman runs all the time and merely has his books balanced each two years to see if he is still in Congress. A schoolboy wrote in a civics examination, 'The seats of congressmen are vaccinated every two years.'

"(8) Listen courteously when an older congressman is talking to you. You can say what you please when he walks away" . . . and . . . "Act very respectfully toward any congressman who has been here 10 years or over. The chances are he is chairman of a committee.

"(9) Learn parliamentary procedure. A dumb congressman can appear fairly smart if he has a general, practical grip on the rules of order here.

"(10) Learn to explain with plausibility. The old gag about never explain anything simply will not work in Congress. The folks know you can not vote with all of them all of the time, but the left-off side wants an explanation, and your job is to make it plausible. Congress is one-fourth action and three-fourths explaining. Your question is, 'Will I get tired of that?' The answer is, 'Yes.'

"(11) No congressman can rise above his secretary.

"(12) Remember the folks back home who are quick to send telegrams on issues are not so great in number as those who do not send telegrams at all.

"(13) Do not overestimate the value of propaganda and underestimate the value of people.

"(14) Do not come in with the idea of making faces at the other party. It is mighty weak service.

"(15) Never get snooty or hard to get along with with the newspaper boys. Not only do they get the last punch at you, but they do have a hard job. They have got to take what you say and do and send it back so it will piece together. I do not believe they ever intentionally misquote anybody. But do not go away angling for trouble with these babies. No matter how big a jackass a man in politics makes of himself, a newspaperman can always improve on it.

"(16) Take your work here as seriously as a Russian takes his vodka; but do not take yourself too seriously. If you do, you probably will be the only member who takes you so.

"(17) Do not prophesy too fully as to the outcome of this war. Wars usually do turn out, but do do not turn out as expected. As to the results and outcome of a war, the unusual is so usual that the unusual is usually the usual. Skip it."

Answering the question, "Is a new congressman a congressman?" Patrick said, "The infant mortality rate is high among baby members of Congress, but I cannot see why one cannot count himself in from the start."

He had previously closed his long list of points with this final advice on how to be a successful congressman, "Come here and study all bills that amount to anything, know them through and through but do not take sides, never take sides, merely be prepared, handy with all the dope, the information, like Webster's dictionary, unbiased, able and ready to serve, and, my fellow members, you will stand out like a lighthouse on a hill amidst this august body from January to December."

Unusual Motif For Lenten Offering Of St. Joseph Players

A mountain is a formidable thing. It is at one and the same time a challenge and an obstacle. It presents itself as a challenge even to the brave and as an insuperable obstacle to all but the most daring and hardy. While magnificent in its grandeur, it is awe-inspiring in its immensity and even terrifying in its origin, for it is the offspring of a violent struggle of conflicting forces, the external remnant of a cataclysmic spasm of nature.

And just as there are physical mountains, the result of violent upheavals, so, too, can there be such intense conflicts in the spiritual and psychic fields of an individual's life. Forces may break loose that will raise up convulsive reactions of such a degree that they form formidable obstacles to one's self and barriers to one's associates.

In view of this, then, one can say that the Lenten drama to be staged Thursday and Friday evenings of this week by the St. Joseph Players has been well named.

The entire action of the play takes place amid the French Alps. Among their peaks, the "Wiederhorn" rises tall and stately. On its slopes a tragedy takes place; for even in its most quiescent mood the mountain remains a challenging obstacle. With this physical tragedy there is unloosed in the lives of three people forces whose struggle for the mastery of their lives lash their personalities and the fundamental convictions of their mind into violent turmoil.

The old village priest has the solution; for he possesses something as sturdy and as stable as the mountain itself, an unswerving, fearless faith. The story of the play comes to a close with different results for all characters in the same degree as each has learned the lesson of the mountain.

The curtain will rise each evening at 8:30 o'clock on a play which promises to be unusual in its motif and well handled by a capable cast.

Final Meeting Held By Dramatic Section

Mrs. H. N. Elmquist was in charge of the regular meeting of the Woman's Club Dramatic Section on Monday afternoon, the last for this season.

Mrs. B. W. Knapp, club president, announced a special meeting next Monday sponsored by the Community Service Department and presenting an out of town speaker.

Members were reminded by Mrs. J. W. A. Luce that Miss Jean Robertson will present a piano recital at the Philomel Club on April 3 to benefit the Warren Chapter, Bundles for Britain.

All were asked by Mrs. William F. Crossett to attend the open house at the club tomorrow afternoon, with old snapshots and a guessing contest for amusement.

CHURCH REVIVALS

SECOND WEEK AT NAZARENE CHURCH

Revival services at the Church of the Nazarene have entered into the second week, with increasing interest shown in the meetings. On Sunday night, the balcony had to be opened to care for the large number attending.

Last evening, Rev. Lon Woodrum, evangelist, read a group of his poems. These included "Great Pine", which is included in a group of poems by American writers collected as a memorial to Sydney Lanier, also "To Lord Tennyson", a poem chosen to represent the state of Missouri in a tribute by American to Lord Tennyson.

The songs of Evangelist Burl Sparks have been greatly enjoyed each evening. For the Sunday services, marked by unusual interest, a large number stayed for the after service, receiving definite spiritual help.

These meetings are at 7:30 each evening, except Saturday. On Friday night, Rev. Woodrum is giving the story of his life, "The Man From the Shadows."

Aged North Warren Resident Honored On 87th Birthday

Mrs. Ella Rickerson, who observed her 87th birthday on Friday, March 21, is one of North Warren's oldest residents and one who has lived there for the past 34 years.

Throughout the day, many cards, beautiful flowers and other gifts were received by the aged celebrant, manifesting the love and high esteem of relatives, neighbors and friends. The occasion was made more enjoyable by visits from her two brothers, Henry Bennett, of Corry, aged 89 years, and Dan Bennett, of Russell, 85 years of age.

In the evening, 45 invited guests were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Rickerson, where present and former neighbors enjoyed a pleasant social time together. Among those present were Mrs. A. A. Amidon, of North Warren, who celebrated her 90th birthday last October, and Mrs. Mary Wyman, of Warren, who is 84.

During the evening, Mrs. Rickerson was delightfully surprised by the arrival of a quartet and accompanist from the Order of Eastern Star, in which she is one of the oldest members. The quartet, Mrs. Edna Duff, Mrs. Beulah Krebs, Mrs. Dorothy Nelson and Mrs. Edna Eby, accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Gleese at the piano, sang several old favorites. The highlights of their program, a singing comedy skit in costume by Mrs. Krebs and Mrs. Nelson, elicited much applause.

After two beautifully decorated birthday cakes had been presented to the honored guest and everyone joined in singing "Happy Birthday, Dear Neighbor", delicious refreshments were served from a very attractive table with a centerpiece of sweet peas flanked by candelabra.

Following the opening of many gifts, Mrs. Rickerson graciously thanked everyone for such a pleasant evening, long to be remembered, and expressed the hope that "all will come again next year."

The very enjoyable occasion was brought to a close with the quartet singing "A Perfect Day" and the guests departed wishing "Grandma" Rickerson many more happy birthdays.

Besides the out of town guests already mentioned was Mrs. Rose Barber, of Buffalo, N. Y.

HEART'S HAVEN

(From Page Three)

YESTERDAY: At first the plane trip to Heart's Haven, on an island off the North Carolina coast, was just a lark that went a little sour. But Eve and Gina, and the three young men whose interest in the girls has created a situation, and the two older women—all of them want to leave the island, and nobody can. Just now young Ham Milliard and Eve have been walking on the beach, and have been shot at by someone. The question is who pulled the trigger.

Chapter 13

Walk On The Beach

IT was at breakfast the next morning that Julie noticed, with happy satisfaction, that Neil Bowron was fascinated by Eve. "Fascinated" was the word she used to herself. She repeated it mentally as she observed that Neil, having asked Eve to pass the toast, was being purposely awkward about taking it, so that his fingers brushed the girl's.

"I was right all along. Sooner or later Eve will have to acknowledge it herself." The train of thought wakened by the discovery of her own rightness was too pleasant to be dismissed at once. Julie spooned up her soft-boiled eggs dreamily. Jim Droissard's voice cut into her thoughts.

"Everybody is so quiet this morning," he remarked. "Almost as if they were worried."

"Well, I'm not, for one," retorted Julie with spirit. "This island is really in sight of the mainland. It's only a question of time before some way of getting back pops up. These things always adjust themselves."

"And Mrs. Jackson was just being silly with her talk of moans and groans. Everyone knows that the wind plays odd tricks in a place like this."

"It certainly does," [illegible] interrupted suddenly. "It [illegible] me up during the night and I could positively make out words!"

"What words?" asked Droissard quickly.

"Oh, I don't know. I didn't try to remember them. I knew it was just my imagination all the time. There was one word though that did seem to keep coming back. You'll laugh when you hear it—it was 'money.' Every once in a while there'd be something that sounded like: 'I want my money.' The 'money' I could hear quite plainly."

"Gina, you're priceless," laughed Ham. "Has anybody else been hearing things?"

"I can tell you what I didn't hear. I didn't hear Lord MacTavish bark. He would bark if there were anything going on, wouldn't he?" Mrs. Marbury asked.

"He would if he were in his own home," said Ham. "He's used to travelling and hotels though, and he has learned to keep his mouth shut in strange places."

"Speaking of strange places," said Eve, "I'm going to explore the one we're in. This is by no means a desert island we've been cast upon, and I think we might very well take an inventory of its assets."

"Is it still raining?" inquired Julie.

"It's stopped, for the moment, anyway," said Brett, staring intently through the window which he faced.

"In that case I'll take some fresh air myself," said Jim Droissard, "and have a look around. There may be something worth investigating on this island."

Eve and Brett started away together. They went down the front path to the beach, wet branches reaching out from the overgrown bushes to slap dripping leaves across their faces.

"Droissard went on ahead of us," observed Brett, watching the other man make his way down toward the water. "He seems to be heading for that old boathouse."

"Let's go the other way then," suggested Eve. "Queer, isn't he?"

"Oh, him . . ." Brett dismissed the subject of Jim Droissard lightly.

"We might begin by exploring that line of rocks there, that runs out into the sea. It doesn't look very promising, but you can't tell; they may hold a clue to the strange goings-on here."

Exploration

WHEN they reached the foot of the last terrace they turned with one accord to look back at the house, as Brett had done that first time.

"I liked it better the first day I saw it," said Eve. "I suppose it's the rain that has made the difference. On a gloomy day like this no old, dilapidated place could look attractive."

"It's not a bad house, really," said Brett. "Of course some of those later additions will have to come off. Why do people always keep changing houses, even when they are perfect architectural examples of their type? Just the urge to leave their own mark on the structure perhaps," he added.

Eve reached for one of the huge rhododendron blooms just above her shoulder and broke it off amid a spatter of raindrops.

"Now that you've got that huge flower, what are you going to do with it?" Brett wanted to know.

"Oh," laughed Eve, "I haven't any plans. . . ."

"Here," said Brett. "I know. It's just the size of the new hats you girls are wearing." He took it from her and slipped the stem beneath the ribbon with which the Eve had tied back her soft cloud of dark hair.

"How is it?" inquired Eve with mock anxiety. "Sartorially perfect as I am"—she glanced down at her rumpled skirt, which had not been improved by Mrs. Jackson's ministrations—"I'd hesitate to spoil the effect by a misplaced flower!"

"You'll do," Brett said soberly, "but let's put it a little more over one eye—like this." He tweaked the flower down well over one eyebrow. "That's it—perfect!"

Eve was oddly contented as he helped her over a deep gully which the rain had washed out in the path. They made their way along the narrow beach in the direction of a headland formed of rocks that served as a bulwark against the sea.

"Maybe we've gone far enough," Brett conceded. "Apparently it's just what it looks like, a lot of mysterious old rocks. Certainly there's nothing to explore out here, except the bottom of the ocean, and we're getting too close to that for comfort."

They retraced their steps along the beach. Jim Droissard had long since disappeared. Except for themselves the beach was deserted.

"The coast is clear. Now is our chance to explore the boathouse," said Brett.

"Maybe I could fall through the floor, or something really serious like that."

Eve's voice was chilly.

"Tell you what I'll [illegible] you stand outside while I go i[illegible]ping. If there is anything [illegible] see, and it's safe, I'll shout for you to come in. If I fall through a trapdoor, I'll shout for help. You can run back to the house and give the alarm. Or, if you prefer it, go back quietly to the house and say nothing. We'd be even then, wouldn't we?"

Eve could not resist his appeal and smiled at him. "No, I'm going with you," she said.

They rounded the curve of the beach in silence, approaching the front of the house again.

"That ocean looks unusually full of water." Eve broke in. "In fact, it looks as if it could swallow the whole island, if it had a mind to."

"It could, but the chances are it won't, if it didn't night before last," said Brett. "That was some terrific storm last night. Did you hear the wind? The sea looks angry yet, doesn't it?"

It certainly did. Eve agreed, looking out over the vast expanse of gray, roiled water. Underfoot, the beach was soggy beneath the stones that overlaid the sand. Bits of foam flecked the shore far above the water line, tossed off when the storm had lathered the sea into a fury. Eve caught some of the bubbles on the toe of her shoe.

"Just like soap bubbles," she observed.

New Puzzle

BUT Brett was staring hard at the outlines of the boathouse just ahead. It was not as decrepit as he had thought it would be. In fact, the foundation seemed to have been repaired at a fairly recent date. He said as much to Eve.

"Maybe somebody used the house as a summer camp," she suggested. "Or maybe someone used the island for picnics, running boating parties over here."

They had reached the long ramp that led from the shore to the building itself, built out over the water.

"Do you want to wait here while I go see if it's safe?" asked Brett.

"Oh, I want to come, too. If it wobbles, I can stop any time."

But the ramp proved fairly steady, and when they entered the boathouse a moment later they found it in surprisingly good condition.

The building consisted of one large room from which steps led down to the boat landing below, at the water's edge. What surprised them most was to find the room furnished after a fashion. There were chairs and a table, and on the shelves along the walls were dusty dishes and rusty pans, as if somebody once, not so long ago, had lived there, or at least stayed overnight.

A bunk stood in one corner, with a few worn blankets heaped upon it. An oil stove was half-hidden behind a pile of boxes. Beside it stood an empty oil can.

"This place looks as if it had been occupied recently," observed Eve.

Brett strode across the room and picked up a paper bag that lay on the shelf. He drew out from it the remains of a sandwich wrapped in waxed paper.

"This sandwich is no relic of early Colonial days," he admitted. "I think somebody brought it here this week."

"What does it mean?" asked Eve.

"That's what I'll have to find out," said Brett grimly. "And I thing when I do find out it will be a matter for the police. Let's get going."

"Where?" said Eve.

Brett took her arm firmly, propelling her through the door and back across the ramp. The trip to the house was made in silence, Brett walking so fast that Eve was half breathless. It had begun to rain again, too—a fact which further hastened their progress up the series of terraces.

As they entered the hall, they caught sight of Jim Droissard and Mr. Howe nearly at the top of the stairs. The lawyer appeared to be assisting Jim to walk. Brett looked up in astonishment.

GROUPS JOIN IN EFFORT TO CUT AUTO ACCIDENTS

Washington, March 25—Impelled by the realization that every accident delays defense, 50 national organizations, united in support of a standard highway safety program, have redoubled all essential traffic accident prevention efforts, it was announced here today by Norman Damon, director of the Automotive Safety Foundation.

More than 15,000,000 persons are included in the membership of the organizations collaborating in the concerted drive for safe and orderly traffic. Continuing sharp increases in the current traffic accident totals indicate the urgency behind this wide-pread effort to save lives and injury.

Every accident that results in injury or death to a defense worker or a man available for military duty, directly retards the defense program, it was pointed out. "During 1940, 16,000 workers in trade and industry were killed in traffic", Mr. Damon said, "as compared with about 2,000 killed in manufacturing plants. About 12,000 occupational fatalities occurred last year in all trade and industry, plus 4,200 fatal accidents in agriculture.

"More important to defense production than the fatalities were 600,000 traffic injuries suffered last year by industry workers.

"With America becoming the arsenal of the democracies, the nation's highway system is the conveyor-belt transporting defense workers and materials. Highways and access roads are the only means of transportation serving many new defense industries and training camps.

"This added traffic is superimposed upon the normal economic demands of the nation's highway transportation system. With America's economy, more than any other nation, geared to highway transportation, safe and orderly traffic will measurably increase our productive efficiency."

Mr and Mrs. Charles Benedict and children, of Ross Hill, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernal Holmes, of Torpedo, were Sunday guests of relatives here.

Today, St. Patrick's Day, we are having the worst storm we have had this winter. It is a genuine old-fashioned blizzard.

The milk truck from Corry got here as far as the Eastman home and had to turn back.

John Zolko, the mail carrier, got stuck in the snow drifts at different times, but got through all right only about an hour late.

The Bell Telephone truck was here today and the phone was connected up at the Cole Hill fire tower. The telephone truck got stuck in the snow drifts and had to be shoveled out. By the amount of snow here now there is no danger of forest fires here for several weeks or more.

The farmers here are busy cutting stove wood to keep the home fires burning. They are also cutting enough wood for next summer, when they will have their farm work to do.

I am not inclined to sympathize with the fellow who claims hard luck on a bridge hand. I usually feel that the claim of hard luck is unwarranted, but I really believe Joseph Low, of New York, has a legitimate claim to the prize hard-luck hand of the year.

My partner and I sat North and South, respectively and we bid the hand as shown. I think, incidentally, that we should have got to four spades.

Low (East) played the ten of clubs on his partner's opening lead. I refused to win and he returned the club jack, which I won with the ace. West played the three, showing me at least five clubs.

A diamond was played to dummy's queen and a diamond returned. When West dropped the jack, I shifted to a small spade, put on the queen from dummy and Low won with the king.

At this point most players would return the deuce of clubs, thereby defeating the contract. Low, however, had planned a brilliant defense. He returned a small heart and I won with the king. I assumed, as Low had hoped I would, that he had no more clubs.

My plan was naturally to continue with another spade finesse. But first I cashed the king of diamonds, discarding dummy's last club.

Here the calamity occurred. Intending to play the seven of diamonds, Low actually dropped the deuce of clubs, and I did not notice it. When I took the spade finesse, Low won, but was unable to lead the club to West. Not only that, but he had to pay us two tricks for the revoke, which in reality cost his side five tricks, since I scored five-odd instead of going down three.

millions for relief but not one cent for defense, that WPA was given projects like building military airfields and naval yard docks and machine shops. And today WPA labor has completed or is working on no less than 1200 defense projects costing in all $263 million. In less than six years, WPA has built or improved 15,000 buildings for army and navy, 500 airports, 1600 new airport buildings.

Also to WPA credit are the vocational refresher courses which are now training 28,000 unemployed, formerly skilled workers, so that they can take their places in defense industry. If there had been more of this vocational training in times of depression, we wouldn't have the shortage of skilled laborers now.

The charge that WPA is competing with defense industry for a labor supply hardly holds water for by law, a man on WPA offered a job in private industry must take it.

An interesting sidelight to this is that whereas WPA labor previously worked only 30 to 40 hours per week, it now works 48 hours a week on all defense projects. So far, there has been no objection to the longer hours, for the simple reason that they mean more pay.

As far as reduction of unemployment and relief are concerned, however, the best you can look for is a drop of three million by the end of 1942. That figure is on the basis of two million absorbed by private industry, and one million more called into the army. And the only way to wipe out the three million still unemployed would be to put them in the army.

Maybe the economic planners have already thought of that, too.

THE FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

Living in the Sky

TUESDAY, MARCH 25. "By what way is the light parted?" Read Job 38:19-28.

The sky has been from of old a symbol of the sacred habitation of the Divine, arching the world with splendor, always to be aspired to and inaccessibly remote. But actually we live in the sky. Its magic veil is woven of light and air and wherever light and air are, there is the sky. Its blue clothes the hills, its mantle covers the valley. It even comes down into the excavation for skyscrapers. It touches every space with its nearness. The sky, said Washington Gladden, begins just where we are.

The sacred and spiritual for which we make the sky the home are just as near. We lose the joy of God's present when we make the high, the distant His only dwelling place. Life would be transformed if only the sense of living in the sky controlled our days and our deeds. True sky-dwellers could do nothing mean and for them nothing would be commonplace since it was a part of the furnishing of the sky and a radiant symbol of the nearness of God.

PRAYER: O Thou Who clothest Thyself with light as with a garment, we bless Thee that Thy garmenture touches all our tasks with a glory from on high. Since Thou hast made us birthright citizens of the sky, forgive our earth-bound ways, our desecration of Thy sky with our hatreds. Hasten the day when the skies shall be at peace again. In the Master's name. Amen.

Hollywood Sights & Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Roly-poly, extra-chinned Alfred Hitchcock has been hit where it hurts. He has been miffed.

"There's no reason," he said, aggrieved, "why a director should be typed. Just because . . ."

Many critics took exception to Hitchcock's "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." Many were disappointed (as was this guileless bystander) that "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" wasn't a "Rebecca" of comedy, a "Foreign Correspondent" of laughs.

"Directors do get typed," said Hitchcock, "but there's no sense to it. Right now John Ford is tied to the soil and the sea. Ernst Lubitsch is labeled the naughty sophisticate. When Lubitsch does something a little different, like 'The Shop Around the Corner,' he's away from type and some people are disappointed. I do mystery and suspense, so I can't do a comedy. It's silly. I don't really care, of course—'Mr. and Mrs. Smith' is doing fine at the box-office."

HITCHCOCK undertook the comedy, he said, more or less as an interlude—or a prelude to his present work, "Before the Fact," or "Fright" as they're now calling it. It is decidedly not a comedy. The "cattle" in it—Hitchcock delights in labeling his actors "cattle"—include Joan Fontaine, Cary Grant, Nigel Bruce and Bruce's wife, Violet Shelton, Clive Brook's daughter Faith, and another pretty young English actress named Carol Curtis Brown.

"I hope," said Hitchcock of his new film, "you will help to spread the word that it is awful. That it stinks."

He was referring to the too glowing advance reports on "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." He would rather have "Fright" surprise by its virtues, if any, than be held up as perfect of its genre—vaunted perfection making such a perfect target.

THEN, forgetting his miff and his hurt, Hitchcock turned again to the scene—in which Misses Shelton, Brown and Brook on the steps of an English country church have just discovered that Fontaine and Grant, who started to services with them, are missing. "Fright" is the story of a wife who suspects her husband wants to murder her.

After the fourth take, Hitchcock pronounced with genial acidity: "In all confidence I can assure you it is getting worse" and the company, breaking into laughter broke for lunch.

Hitchcock sets usually are like that, once the "cattle" business is made clear. Cary Grant, a first-timer with Hitchcock, was mystified for the first week, as he later confessed to Hitchcock. You'd be irked, too, if you were a top-ranking star and after you'd done a scene your director called to an assistant: "Run over to the westerns and get me a cowpuncher to handle these cattle." Joan Fontaine was initiated in "Rebecca."

Milk Mixture for Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs but little and sold under absolute guarantee that it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Miller Cut Rate and drug stores everywhere.

Pattersons Down Generals To Cop City Basketball Title

Wolfe Paces Tiremen To 53-40 Decision In Series Rubber Fracas

By virtue of a 53-40 decision over the Generals, Chink Collins' Patterson semi-pros last night were crowned basketball champions of the city before a huge crowd on the Y. M. C. A. court.

The Tiremen took the bit in their teeth in the third period to score 20 points to five for the ex-Dragons after trailing at half time 22-19. In the final period, the teams played about evenly.

Elmo Wolfe provided the sensation of the evening as he clicked off 24 points to pace the Tiremen to the win and the title. Elmo got away to a slow start, but notched eight points in the big third, as did Johnny Pawk, and ten in the final stanza.

Johnny Pick and Cliff Graham took the play away from the vaunted Conroy and Tucker for the Generals.

The Pattersons were without the services of one of their ace scoring stars, "Bud" Kribbs, and enlisted Kenny Christiansen, another former Dragon luminary, who played a creditable game at one of the defensive posts.

In the preliminary, the Kane "Y" quintet disposed of the White Horses, 30 to 20.

The Ericksons lost their customary three points in the Conewango Club circuit last night as Bill Lutz' keglers rallied to cop the second and third games and total. . . . Doc Anderson was the only man on either team to get over 500, and his 197 game fell just two pins short of the evening's single as Dean Anderson crashed through with 199 . . . Melvin George Keller substituted for Dr. Cashman in the first two games and did all right for himself, but drew a fine from his own captain, Charley Pettibone, for unauthorized barnstorming . . . Despite the defeat, Captain Erickson took some consolation in the showing of his newly-drafted pin-spiller, Joseph H. (D.A.) Goldstein, who was impressive in his debut on the Conewango drives.

Three matches only were bowled in the Elks Exalted Ruler circuit, with the league-leading Tasty Bakery taking three, from the Warren Tank Car, the Crescent Florals whitewashing the Texas Lunch and The N. ANGELS SELL RIPPER COLLINS TO PIRATES

Los Angeles, March 25—(.P)—President Dave Fleming of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League sold First Baseman James "Rip" Collins to the Pittsburgh Pirates for $5,000 today.

"Rip" will be an understudy for first sacker Elbie Fletcher.

Collins, a native of Nanty-Glo, Pa., came to Los Angeles in 1939 from the Chicago Cubs. He was the Coast League home run leader for 1939 with 26. In both seasons here, he ranked with the leaders in runs driven in and was conceded to be the best fielding first baseman in the Coast circuit.

This spring, Collins was listed as a holdout. He declined to sign a Los Angeles contract for $800 a month because he saw an opportunity to return to major league baseball.

SHAKY INFIELD AGAIN BOTHERS CARDINAL CLUB

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 25—(.P)—The St. Louis Cardinals are being plagued again by the same weakness that has characterized their efforts for several years—an uncertain infield.

Manager Billy Southworth is having such difficulty at this late stage in finding the right combination that some of the club's most ardent boosters are cooling off rapidly.

Early in the training grind Southworth at least hoped his troubles had been dissolved by the simple process of planting Steve Mesner, the .341 hitting rookie from San Diego on third base and shifting Jimmie Brown over to second, with String-Bean Martin Marion, between them, at short.

But in yesterday's game here against Detroit, Brown was back at his old third base post, Frank Crespi from Rochester was at second and Mesner was riding the bench. Again it was a typical patched-up St. Louis infield—the sort that does not capture pennants—so it might be well to start concentrating on Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the annual spring guessing game.

Southworth denies he has given up on Mesner, but observers here are willing to bet that the slugging rookie does not start the season.

Otherwise, the Cards undeniably look good. Johnny Mize, finally having ended his holdout siege, is back at his familiar first base post and his 40-ounce bat gives increased authority to the club's attack. Don Padget, who has been holding down first in Mize's absence, will be shifted to the outfield.

Young Walker Cooper, brought in from Columbus late last season, already has proved himself a competent receiver and will divide the work with the veteran Gus Mancuso. Gus still runs mostly in one spot, but he will prove valuable in handling the young pitchers.

It is too early to go overboard on John Grodzicki, the pitching sensation of the Cards' exhibition season. The fact that he pitched all winter down in Central America gave him a big jump on batters who were just getting the chill out of their bones, and it remains to be seen how he fares when they begin swinging those wagon tongues in earnest. Branch Rickey, however, is sure the club has a winner in Elwin Roe, brought up from Rochester.

The standout man in camp, from all reports has been Rightfielder Enos Slaughter. His hitting and fielding both have bordered on the sensational.

SPORT SPATTERINGS by BILL RICE

Leo Durocher

A visitor from Mars, wandering around Warren for a while, might easily assume that this borough was located in the vicinity of Brooklyn, for the eyes and hopes of the majority of this community's fans are pinned on the Flatbush entry in the National League. This proves that Warren diamond followers are not exactly color-blind and shows the results of the tub-thumping and ballyhoo of Larry MacPhail. While we can see only the Cincinnati Reds to repeat for the pennant, we can't think of anything which would provide more copy for hard-pressed scribes than the Dodgers' successful quest of the National League flag. You've got to admit that the Durocher outfit may still be daffy in spots, but their fits of temporary mental unbalance are becoming fewer and farther between. The vaudeville act they used to stage on the baselines, to the delight of the opposition and the despair of the Flatbush populace, may be cut off the bill by the hiring of Max Carey, the old purloining champ, whose duty it will be to teach the Dodgers how to conduct themselves on the runways. Carey learned every movement of rival pitchers and that knowledge enabled him to get the jump on each pitch. If he can teach the Durocher comedians how to steal half as well, he will put Dickens' famous Fagin to shame. After all, that character only had one "Artful Dodger" as a pupil.

Paul Waner seems to have the right field berth locked up, as a result of a determined comeback campaign. With Pete Reiser in center and Joe Medwick in left, the club has an outfield that will take a back seat for none. Dolf Camilli is a fixture at first, Pete Coscarart draws the keystone, teamed with Peewee Reese, and Cookie Lavagetto rounds out the infield. The illness of Catcher Babe Phelps is causing some concern, but the Blimp is expected to be on the job when the season opens, sinus or no sinus. If Luke "Hot Potato" Hamlin, Whit Wyatt, Kirby Higbee and Hugh Casey have good years, the Rhinelanders may feel Dodger breath on the back of their necks before the season is very old. MacPhail is taking no chances on losing any of his stars via the beanball route, and has ordered a piece of plastic sewed into every cap.

While the Dodgers have plenty of rooters in the borough, don't think for a minute that the Pirates have lost all of their following. There are still plenty of Warrenites who will spend the season booting the Buccos into the first division, and even the most pessimistic pick Frankie Frisch's new Cashouse Gang no lower than fourth. Forbes Field will doubtless receive plenty of Warren visitors this summer, but the Cleveland ball park seems to have lost its charm. We can recall when the Indians and the Pirates were local favorites, with the Athletics commanding the devotion of quite a number, but since the Tribe trooped into Bradley's office with requisitions for another shipment of crying towels, it has been possible to use a telephone both for a meeting of the Cleveland Booster Society, Local Chapter No. 1. And, although we'll groan, too, it wouldn't surprise us if "Peck" brings the Tribe home in front this year.

YEARS AGO IN SPORT

March 25, 1921—Maurice Kofford, of Clarendon, brought his Allegheny College team here last night, but the Nameless Five turned back the collegians, 27-24. Warren scored only eight field goals and Allegheny seven, but Harry Conroy pulled the Nameless Five through with eleven foul shots to Kofford's ten. Nick Wendelboe got half of the Nameless Five's eight two-point shots.

March 25, 1931—Limiting the Yes Gas quint to four field goals with an air-tight defense, two of the field goals being chalked up by Bob Ritchie, the Merchants won the first city series game last night, 24-14. Al Wolfe chalked up eleven points for the winners and was the star of the game in floor work as well.

PARI-MUTUEL BILL TO BE INTRODUCED

Harrisburg, March 25—(.P)—Senator John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) said today he will introduce a measure to legalize pari-mutuel wagering at harness and hunt races in Pennsylvania.

The bill, which Dent said he expects to present tomorrow, provides that no more than 10 harness or hunt races be licensed for pari-mutuels in a single year and that the state's share in the proceeds go to the Department of Agriculture.

The state would take 5 per cent of the pari-mutuel pool plus 50 per cent of the "break" which the bill defined as "the odd cents over any multiple of 10 calculated on the basis of $1."

The association or corporation would receive 10 per cent of the pool and 50 per cent of the "break" and the bettors 85 per cent of the pool.

WARREN GIRLS ANNEX TENTH CAGE VICTORY

Although Katherine Sands racked up 24 points, the Sugar Grove Girls alumni team bowed to the 21 Club here last night by a score of 37-32. Miss Beichner racked up 18 and Miss Mitchell 15 for the winners.

It was the tenth win out of 14 starts for the local girls.

A return game will be played at Sugar Grove next Monday night.

Stage Set For Pair Of Upsets As Court Tourney Nears Final

Harrisburg, March 25—(.P)—The stage is set for two startling upsets tonight as Luzerne battles Lower Merion and Duquesne tangles with Sharpsville in the semi-finals of the annual P. I. A. A. eliminations leading to the state high school basketball title.

Luzerne is favored over Lower Merion at Philadelphia while Duquesne is rated tops over Sharpsville at Pittsburgh, but Lower Merion and Sharpsville have scored surprise wins before and they may do it again.

The winners will meet Saturday night for the state title at either Philadelphia or Pittsburgh. The exact site is not yet determined.

Lower Merion, upset winner over Williamsport last week, bases its hopes of beating Luzerne on whatever defense Coach Bill Anderson has devised to stop "Deadeye" Charles Crossin. Crossin, who can shoot with equal ability with either hand from anywhere on the floor, has scored 626 points so far this year in leading Luzerne to 26 straight triumphs.

"How are you going to stop a guy like that?" moaned Anderson. Nevertheless Anderson's followers think the Maroon will rise to the heights.

Duquesne, District Seven champ, has been rolling up big scores and came from behind last week to beat Bradford. Sharpsville, however, upset Sharon and Erie East and took close games from Franklin and Franklin Boro. It may be the confidence thus gained will prove the right tonic for the District Ten champs.

Sports Round-up

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, March 24—(The Special News Service)—They never learn. Tony Canzoneri, whose first restaurant flopped, is going to try it again in the Times Square district. And Young Montreal, the old lightweight, is starting a comeback at 43. . . Larry MacPhail is looking over Van Mungo's report card at Macon before flying to Los Angeles to try to get Billy Herman from the Cubs. . . . Alf Etourner, the bike-riding star, got out of France via the rear door route and is here to stay as long as he can—and he doesn't mean maybe. . . . Jack Dempsey entertains the upper crust of Broadway and Hollywood at a British relief fund party tonight—at ten bucks a crack.

One-Minute Interview

Harry (The Horse) Danning: "If Al Schacht can write a book, I can play left field."

Strange Goings-on

What went on at Detroit the other night, anyway? One announcer said, "One of the fighters has one foot off the ground." Another discovered that one of the boys was holding the other six feet away from him. Our favorite spieler yelled, "Simon has two left eyes," when all the time we thought it was two left feet Abe was afflicted with. . . . Anyway, Papa Simon, way up in the Bronx, sure hoited Abe's feelings by stomping off to the movies just before the main bout went on. . . . The town is wise to the phoney posing as Hal Chase, former first basing star, who was telling bar flies he hitch-hiked all the way from Arizona to see his old pal, Grover Cleveland Alexander, now in a veterans' hospital. The guy's sob story brought him quite a few bucks before someone nailed him.

Today's Guest Star

B. M. Atkinson, Jr., Louisville Times: "Even the government is gunning for college football players. . . . That five per cent proposed tax on salaries will hurt."

Grapefruit Grapevine

Reds looking pretty weak up there with Ernie Lombardi out. . . Baseball writers vote Mrs. Freddie Fitzsimmons loveliest of the the Dodger wives. . . . Al Schacht will tour the sticks this year in a custom-built car. . . . Among yesterday's Cardinal pitchers were Warneke and Gornicki, which gives one an idea for a jingle some time. . . We saw pictures of Gen. George C. Marshall, (mentioned as Judge Landis' possible successor), and he looks plenty hard boiled. . . Both Yanks and Cardinals return to St. Pete next season. . . To this day, after 16 years of big league campaigning, Paul Waner never has been on a rubbing table.

Long Hike Wins High Praise For Boys of 112th

marched 14 miles in half a day yesterday—and only four men dropped out of ranks.

Immediately upon their arrival back in camp, General Martin ordered posting of a special bulletin commending the soldiers and their officers for the excellence of the march.

The march constituted a battle problem as well as a demonstration of the soldiers' condition after only a month's training.

The regiment made the march over muddy back roads and paved highways slippery with gumbo to depict the formation and operation of a unit sent out to repulse a theoretical enemy advancing to the Susquehanna river, 25 miles away.

Arriving at division headquarters right on the minute, the regiment paraded past General Martin with guidons flying and the band playing a snapping march.

The four men who dropped out had aching feet. The 112th units are from Kane, Butler, Grove City, Oil City, Ridgway, Erie, Meadville, Ford City, Warren, Bradford and Franklin.

Bill Proposes Changes In Pa. Welfare Laws

ators Weldon R. Heyburn (R-Delaware), John D. Kent (D-Westmoreland), Robert M. Miller (R-Luzerne) and Wilson.

In a crowded House chamber dry representatives voiced protests before a House committee against the employment of women in taprooms, while a hotel spokesman asked passage of a bill to repeal a law of 1878 forbidding employment of women in drinking places.

Chairman John M. Walker (R-Allegany) said the senate judiciary general committee would release for a vote on the floor today the bill barring the Communist party from the ballot in Pennsylvania.

Amendments drawn after a public hearing at which veterans' organizations backed the measure and representatives of the Communist party opposed; it would give to the secretary of the commonwealth the authority to say when a party is dedicated to "overthrow of the government."

Walker said the Communists would lose their status on the ballot if the secretary would decide that they were in favor of "force and violence" to promote their ideas.

ing under the domination of the Axis powers.

The action prohibited the use or removal of any Yugoslavian cash, securities or other movable assets in this country. Commerce Department experts estimated such Yugoslavian assets totaled $1,000,000.

Yugoslavia was the 13th nation whose funds have been frozen. The other nations have about $4,500,000,000 worth of assets here. They are Norway, Denmark, France, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxemburg, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary.

Affected indirectly, especially if Yugoslavia adopts reprisal measures, are about $36,000,000 worth of American investments in Yugoslavia, mostly private American holdings of Yugoslavian government bonds.

Nations Clear Decks for War on Large Scale

is from an earlier dispatch.)

While Yugoslavia's premier and foreign minister were affixing their signatures to the Axis alliance and their Yugoslav opponents were crying treason, these developments increased observers' belief a showdown is imminent:

1. Britain appeared prepared to sever diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia and Hungary after advising the Belgrade government she could not "condone" its alliance with the Axis.

2. Soviet Russia, whose attitude long has been an enigma, pledged "full and comprehensive neutrality" in the event that Turkey, Britain's non-belligerent ally, is "obliged to enter the war for the defense of her territory."

3. Soviet war materials were reported flowing across the Caucasus frontier into Turkey only a few hours after this pact was announced in Ankara. Russian army and naval units facing German forces in southeastern Europe also were reported being strengthened.

4. Reliable sources asserted Russia also had halted shipments of vital oil supplies to the Reich.

5. Reports from Bulgaria said minor frontier clashes already had taken place between Greek troops and German forces poised for a thrust toward the Mediterranean. One report said Greek anti-aircraft batteries had shot down a Nazi reconnaissance plane over Thrace.

6. Greece indicated she would terminate a 1923 treaty giving Yugoslavia a free port zone at Salonika, if Yugoslavia consented to the passage of German or Italian ammunition trains through her territory.

7. Yugoslav Communists, reportedly acting on orders from Moscow, urged a campaign of sabotage and non-cooperation to disrupt communication lines within the country which might aid the Germans.

British quarters declared a break with Yugoslavia and Hungary might "come at any moment".

Observers expected the British to follow up such a break by swiftly seizing Yugoslav merchant ships plying the Mediterranean, for it was understood that under a secret provision of the Axis pact Yugoslavia would "coordinate" all her commerce and industry with the Reich.

Yugoslavia's merchant marine of more than 400,000 tons has been making rich profits carrying neutral cargoes through the British blockade.

Reports were current, meanwhile, in Belgrade that Germany had dispatched 18 or 20 divisions of troops (216,000 to 240,000 men on a basis of a 12,000-man division) to Italy to keep internal order and forestall a separate Italian-Greek peace which might thwart Nazi plans.

Fund Bill Ready For President

With the debate over, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) told reporters that final approval of the $7,000,000,000 appropriation for the lease-lend program had given the president "everything he has asked for."

"Now," he continued, "it is entirely up to the president to determine whether this is going to be a war measure, or, as his leaders in the Senate said, a peace measure."

Wheeler, who voted against the program and the appropriation, quoted Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky and Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate foreign relations committee as saying it was not contemplated that shipments to Britain should be convoyed by American naval vessels or that American troops should be sent abroad.

Besides Wheeler, two other Democrats voted against the appropriation. Five Republicans and one Progressive also opposed it. For the bill were 49 Democrats, 17 Republicans and one Independent.

Wheeler was working today on an itinerary for a forthcoming speaking tour, in which he will demand that the United States stay out of war. Senator Nye (R-ND), another opponent of the British aid program, announced that he would start a tour with an address in San Francisco Saturday. All the addresses will be under the auspices of the America First Committee.

Hitler Plans to Receive Envoys in Palace Later

Fourth, she promised, after conclusion of the war, when she plans the "new order in Europe," to take into account Yugoslavia's wishes regarding the Aegean Sea.

Yugoslavia, according to this version, undertook:

First, to permit the transport of war and hospital equipment as well as of wounded over her territory;

Second, to dovetail her economic system into that of the Axis;

Third, to end anti-Axis manifestations and influences in Yugoslavia.

The text of the document was identical with that which brought Rumania unreservedly into the Axis-lineup.

As in the case of Hungary and Bulgaria, the ceremony occurred in Belvedere Palace in the presence of Von Ribbentrop. Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and Lieutenant General Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese ambassador to Berlin.

They signed for their respective countries while Yugoslavia Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic signed for Yugoslavia.

The Axis governments addressed identical notes to the Yugoslav premier, Dragisa Cvetkovic. The German note was read by German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Hitler, who arrived here shortly after the dignitaries had assembled in Vienna, arranged to receive the Yugoslav delegation at 2:00 p. m.

London, March 25—(AP)—An authoritative source declared today that Britain would reserve the right to attack German forces appearing in Yugoslavia and would regard any kind of Berlin-Belgrade agreement as the "thin edge of the wedge of German domination."

Yugoslavia, this source said, had been warned of the "dangers" of even a modified agreement.

He expressed belief the Germans would have much more difficulty reconciling the Yugoslav peoples to any agreement than they had in either Rumania or Bulgaria.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, March 25—(AP)—A strict telephone censorship was established in this country a few minutes after it signed up with the Axis today.

Correspondents attempting to telephone out of the country found the lines cut whenever they mentioned anything connected with the Axis partners.

Tear Gas Disperses Strikers

"All steel making departments of the plant are operating substantially at capacity. About 70 per cent of the normal force is at work."

After conferring with department superintendents, Lewis announced that 5600 of the 8000 normally on the day shift were in the mills.

Curtiss said eventually 18,000 men would be out. There are 21,000 employes here, 18,000 eligible for union membership. The ERP, however claims 16,000 members.

Tear gas was used by a city policemen to disperse pickets who thronged around an automobile driven by a company policeman as the car approached the main gate of the sprawling plant while shifts were changing at 7 a. m. (EST).

The demonstrators gave way as a charge from a tear gas gun was loosed in their direction. The company policeman proceeded into the plant.

Curtiss, announcing the SWOC'S four-point program for possible settlement, indicated the union might be agreeable to calling off the strike as soon as the company agrees to conferences to discuss the points.

His proposal:

1. That strikers be returned to their jobs without loss of seniority.

2. That the company "withdrew permission from the ERP for holding elections on company property."

3. That the company abide by an order of the National Labor Relations Board to disestablish the ERP. (The NLRB issued such an order some months ago. The company's appeal is now pending).

4. That the company agree to enter negotiations toward a labor board election in the plant for selection of a collective bargaining agency.

Company officials could not be reached immediately for comment.

Curtiss said 1500 pickets were stationed at the nine gates of the plant this morning.

Italian Leader In Libya Resigns

Graziani's staff in Libya, had been promoted to governor with command of troops in Libya.

General Mario Roatto, army under-chief of staff, was promoted to chief of staff.

Graziani, army chief of staff since October 1939, was named commander of the army in Libya July 1, 1940, succeeding Marshal Italo Balbo, who was killed when his plane was shot down over Tobruk.

Graziani organized the Italian advance into Egypt which was turned into a retreat when the British recaptured Sidi Barrani last December. He retained command throughout the British counter-offensive in which the Italians were driven from eastern Libya.

Rumors that Graziani would resign began circulating about the time Marshal Pietro Badoglio retired as chief of the general staff Dec. 6. They became more persistent after the North African disaster. Recently Graziani was reported to be suffering from a throat ailment which might require an operation.

Gariboldi commanded the "grand unit" of the Italian forces in East Africa before he became chief of Graziani's staff in Libya.

PAPER ENDORSES CUTOFF LINK ON U. S. ROUTE SIX

Kane Republican: Despite assurance by McKean county commissioners that paving of the proposed Mt. Alton-Ormsby link in the Smethport-Warren highway would not result in re-routing of U. S. 6, eliminating Hazelhurst, Mt. Jewett, Kane and Ludlow, an editorial in the Bradford Star-Record Saturday endorsed the project and stated it would provide "a cut-off for traffic en route to the east."

McKean county commissioners by unanimous vote recently agreed to pay property damages up to $1,500 on the Mt. Alton-Ormsby route, a move which was expected to expedite building of the road.

Bradford long has coveted the trans-continental highway which now goes through the southern section of the county, and several years ago a Bradford hotel erected signs near Glade to divert traffic over Route 59, which saves several miles between Warren and Smethport, but is considered hazardous because of the several railroad crossings and sharp curves, in addition to sections of narrow pavement.

Following is the editorial from Saturday's Bradford Star-Record:

"Assurance of an improved highway across from state highway route 219 at Lafayette corner thence to route six via Ormsby on 59 is good news to McKean county.

"Beside providing a cut-off for traffic en route to the east and shortening the distance for Music Mountain development several miles, it traverses a section of the county where the proposed federal-aid aviation field may be located, if present plans are finally adopted. As a matter of fact it will add another material reason for the ultimate location of that proposed airport in that central area of the county.

"McKean county has had a notable reputation for its fine network of improved roads, but there has been a dearth of new construction here for so long that a revival of highway building in the county is a novelty and in good order. It is a well known secret that McKean pays a large proportionate part of state taxes in addition to a relatively big part of the state's motor vehicle license revenue. This warrants a just proportion of the state's allocation of funds for new construction as it also does a necessary maintenance appropriation for existing improvement.

"Pennsylvania must not forget the importance of the oil industry to the state and the nation in this hour of defense requirements. A first class network of improved roads in northern McKean county to facilitate swift highway transportation to isolated points on the map is believed to be an important and urgent necessity in the successful prosecution of a defense program. Needless to say it is even more important in the event this country goes to war."

Careless Habits Are Dangerous

BY PAUL BRAUNSCHWEIGER of The Mullen Drug Co.

There are many stories of how small infections resulted fatally. A blister on the heel, an insect's bite, a neglected cut.

Equally fatal results often follow certain small habits, plucking hairs from the face or nose, use of neglected tweezers, picking with the fingers at bumps and boils and "itchy places," resulting from the bite of a winged pest.

There is no way to be sure that the hands are sterile. Guard against dangerous acts. The first sign of irritation or infection should be referred to your doctor.

Curatives advised by the physician should be procured from a competent druggist.

State Official Describes Plans That Are Under Way to Meet Flood Threat

Harrisburg, March 25 (AP)—The "whole-hearted cooperation of all municipal authorities and local disaster relief groups" was sought today by the state in coordinating plans for possible spring floods.

G. Albert Stewart, secretary of forests and waters, outlined plans already developed "should disaster strike" in a radio address last night summing up activities of his department of the state government.

"There are flood potentialities although they are not alarming" through the presence of deep snow on the upper water sheds of some rivers, said Stewart, adding that plans have been made in advance by Governor James through establishment of a flood emergency committee.

"The committee is functioning most admirably under the broad powers conferred by the governor," Stewart said.

"Every resource of the state government in men, materials and equipment is being catalogued. Power boats, pumps, trucks, etc., are being inventoried.

"Every state department, board and commission is cooperating in setting up a plan of action should disaster strike. Representatives of the U. S. army, the American Red Cross and all other relief and disaster agencies have been brought into a well-coordinated program."

Stewart said the emergency committee, which he heads, would not "usurp or preempt" any local responsibilities "but it is the very earnest desire of the committee that it have the whole-hearted cooperation of all municipal authorities and local disaster relief groups."

Such groups as the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and others, Stewart said, would be prepared to "step into the breach" for flood relief work because the Pennsylvania National Guard, as such, will be unavailable for such duty although arrangements have been made for help from state units now in federal service.

CAMP DITTIES

News From Indiantown Gap by Members of Company I, 112th Infantry

By Sgt. Joseph L. Schearer

Well, back in the saddle again, and all men looking forward to a nice hike in the morning.

For the last month the boys have been busy in the field with basic drill and all are anxious to get into a new phase of training.

Fourteen of our company were home on leave over the weekend and each reminds the other of the swell time they had and how welcome the Warren folks made them.

The routine of camp life has at last become a part of the boys and most of them look forward to the new day and the schedule that accompanies it. Most of the boys have been too busy to cut their little capers but we all look forward to a week of good fun.

So I close, thanking citizens of Warren for their hearty welcome and gifts.

It has been some time since a college men's glee club of first rank has visited Warren and it is anticipated that there will be a large attendance.

Officers at Third Corps Area Headquarters in charge of the R. O. T. C. training program announced today the schedule for the Senior Division Advanced Course R. O. T. C. Camps to be held in the Corps Area during this coming summer.

The training will last for the usual period of six weeks. To qualify for a commission in Officers Reserve Corps, it is necessary for the student to attend an advance camp during his course of instruction. This is usually done during the summer following his Junior year.

Upon graduating from college and after satisfactory completion of the R. O. T. C. course, and having reached the age of 21, the student is offered a commission in the Officers Reserve Corps in the branch in which he has received his training.

It is expected that all R. O. T. C. graduates of this year who desire it will be given the opportunity of active service within a reasonably short period of time after receiving their commissions.

A COMMUNICATION

Warren, Pa.,
March 25, 1941.

Editor Times-Mirror,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

In last evening's Times-Mirror, I saw the report of the Warren County Auditors for the year of 1940. After carefully reading this report I failed to see any mention made of the huge sums the County Commissioners have in their possession from the Hoffman and other Estates. Is it not the duty of the county auditors to audit these accounts and let the people of the county know what is being done with these trust funds: how the money is invested and how the income is spent?

If we have County Auditors, I can see no reason why they don't do a real job of auditing. They are elected for that purpose and if they are not competent, they should step down and let persons be elected who can do the job as it should be done.

Taxpayer.
